My name's Anthony Garrard, this fall I am going to start attending the University of Utah for Game Design. Over my high school career I've taken a few programming classes, and can't wait to expand on what I've learned. I hope to one day work for a game studio to create some memorable games, the same type that shaped my childhood.